

The Eye Center of North Florida,

My husband, Alex has been serving the community as a firefighter for 9 years. Locally, a little over a year. He loves what he does, and it shows when he talks about it. Since the day I met him, he has always put others needs before his own. The Texas floods a couple years ago are a prime example as to how far he would go to help someone in need. I'll never forget his battalion chief calling him at midnight saying the water was getting high and they needed help. He didn't hesitate to immediately drive through terrible weather to put himself in harm's way to rescue people from the waters that were quickly rising. For two days, he remained out there doing search and rescue. This earning him the Medal of Valor. I know running calls like that one, and many more would have been much easier without the hassle of glasses or contact lenses. For this reason, I nominate my husband Alex Barrera for LASIK.

Warm regards,

Ashton Pannelli
